A Guide to Innovative, Quality Long Term Care Options in New York

About CCLC
The Continuing Care Leadership Coalition (CCLC) is a membership and advocacy organization representing more than 100 of the nation’s most innovative and comprehensive not-for-profit and public long term care organizations in the New York metropolitan area and beyond. CCLC’s establishment in 2003 as an affiliated entity of the Greater New York Hospital Association (GNYHA) highlights the growing importance of continuing care services in today’s health care marketplace.

CCLC’s purpose is to shape, through advocacy, research, and education, an environment that supports the delivery of, and access to, continuing care services of the highest quality and to provide State and national leadership in advancing effective continuing care policies and practices through the collective experience, vision, and effort of our members.

The members of CCLC provide mission-driven services across the continuum of care to people of all ages throughout the New York metropolitan area and beyond. CCLC’s members are leaders in the delivery of skilled nursing care, home health care, adult day health care, respite care, hospice care, rehabilitation and subacute care, senior housing and assisted living, and services to populations with special needs.

How to use this guide

When consumers and providers of health care seek to access the long term care system, many find it difficult to navigate the options available. The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services confirmed this and found that there is a need for better resources to access the long term care system. In response to this need, we developed the CCLC CareSource as a guide for consumers, providers, and other interested parties, offering ready access to accurate information on the premier long term care organizations in the New York metropolitan area.

In this era of reform, Federal and State policy imperatives are advancing the need to improve care transitions. A movement toward integrated care models and value-based purchasing continues to drive the health care system to improve quality and efficiency, and this publication is designed to help individuals and organizations achieve this goal through information that can facilitate and support the care transitions process.

The CCLC CareSource contains a table of contents and detailed indexes to help users find long term care organizations by type of service and by geographic area. There are three types of provider organizations included in the CareSource, each with its own section in the book—skilled nursing facilities, home care agencies, and long term care systems—and for each organization listed, the CCLC CareSource provides a full page of detailed information.

Skilled nursing facilities provide a broad spectrum of services to individuals who are too frail to live in the community, or need additional rehabilitation or recovery following a hospital stay. Typically, a skilled nursing facility provides around-the-clock medical care, skilled nursing services, social services, rehabilitation (e.g., physical, occupational, and speech therapy), therapeutic recreation, nutritional services, and transportation to specialty medical services. In addition to these services, skilled nursing facilities often have coffee shops, boutiques, auditoriums for programming, outdoor space, beauty salons, libraries, and financial services. Many skilled nursing facilities also provide subacute care following a hospital stay with the goals of returning the individual back to the community. Subacute care usually includes intensive rehabilitation therapy and may be right for stroke patients, heart attack patients, orthopedic patients, individuals who have medically complex conditions, persons who require wound care, pain management, chemotherapy, or stabilization of anticoagulant therapy.

Home care is provided in individuals’ homes through three types of agencies in New York State—certified home health agencies (CHHAs), long term home health care programs (LTHHCPs), or licensed home care services agencies (LHCSAs). A person might seek home care services for a short period of time to further recover following a hospital stay, or for a longer period of time to receive assistance with medications and other daily activities. CHHAs and LTHHCPs provide the professional care that is required, while LHCSAs provide the paraprofessional and other services that might be needed.

New York State’s LTHHCP, also known as the Lombardi, or “nursing home without walls,” program, allows nursing home certifiable individuals to live in the community. This section of the CareSource includes free-standing home health agencies as well as agencies that are affiliated with long term care organizations or hospitals.

Long term care systems are organizations with multiple entities that provide more than one type of service. A long term care system could include within its purview a nursing facility, a home health care agency, an adult day health care program, a managed long term care program, and senior housing. A long term care system could also include any combination of the above types of entities. Particularly in the not-for-profit and public long term care provider community, long term care organizations now commonly offer a broad range of services to meet the needs of older and disabled individuals both in inpatient settings as well as in the community.

Additional information about the long term care organizations in this guide is available on several Web sites maintained by the State and federal governments. New York State maintains a Nursing Home Profile section on its Web site (http://nursinghomes.nyhealth.gov/) and is working to improve access to long term care information through the NY Connects Web site (http://nycconnects.org/). The U.S. Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) maintains the Nursing Home Compare and Home Health Compare areas of the Medicare.gov Web site (http://www.medicare.gov/). Additional information on choosing long term care services and an electronic version of this guide may be found on CCLC’s Web site for consumers (http://leadersincare.org/).

Although CCLC has verified the information in the CareSource, we recommend that users be sure to contact organizations directly to confirm information as details may change over time. We hope that the CareSource will be a useful tool for you as you navigate the long term care system.

Profile
ArchCare at Kateri Residence is a Joint Commission-accredited, not-for-profit, 520-bed skilled nursing and rehabilitation center in Manhattan. Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of New York assumed responsibility for operating the home in 1981 and named it in memory of Kateri Tekakwitha, a caring 17th century Native American Indian who converted to Christianity. In 1980, 300 years after her death, Blessed Kateri was beatified by Pope John Paul II. Today, our dedicated clinical and support staff strives to fulfill the ideals of Blessed Kateri by providing loving care to all patients and residents in a manner that bespeaks respect, compassion, sensitivity, and concern. Whether seeking short-term rehabilitation or long term care, our patients and residents benefit from our philosophy of individualized care in a homelike setting.

Profile
Mary Manning Walsh Home is noted for its superiority in meeting the physical, spiritual and emotional needs of its residents. This reputation is due in large part to the facility being served by the Carmelite Sisters for the Aged and Infirm. The Sisters have, for many years, been the pacesetters of eldercare philosophy, and their development of the “resident-centered care” model has become the standard for excellence. Full rehabilitative services are available, including physical, occupational, and speech therapy for both long-term and short-term residents. The home has recently renovated to two floors which are dedicated to short term rehabilitation.

Profile
The Elizabeth Seton Pediatric Center is a not-for-profit organization that provides pediatric skilled nursing care to 136 medically fragile children—changing lives, one child at a time. Each year, our state-of-the-art residential health center provides round-the-clock care to infants, children and adolescents, from birth to age eighteen. All of our programs are centered around our children and their families, respecting individual cultural beliefs and religious practices, and involve parents in their children’s care as much as possible. In the tradition of St. Elizabeth Seton, we cherish all children and believe in the healing power of loving relationships. As a center of pediatrics, rehabilitative and palliative care, we are inspired by her legacy as we join with families in the holistic care of their children.

Profile
Rosary Hill Home through the Dominican Sisters of Hawthorne provide palliative care for persons afflicted with incurable cancer who cannot afford to pay for needed nursing care. Rosary Hill is a free home; no payment of any kind is accepted from patients or their families, nor from the government. In accordance with their rule, the Sisters place their trust in the loving providence of God. That trust has never failed. Donations large and small, from groups and individuals, have provided the necessary funds to support the work. We dedicate our lives to fulfilling our mission: "We must make our guests glad they crossed the threshold that is to be their last boundary. We must make them as comfortable and happy as if their own people had kept them and put them into the very best bedroom. We must love them."

Profile
St. Mary's opened its doors to the Harlem community in 1992 when the face of HIV/AIDS was a grim specter, leaving those infected a mere eighteen months to live after diagnosis. During the years since then, advances in medical treatment and chemotherapy have changed a death sentence into life. People are living with and managing this disease as a chronic illness. Much has happened since the early days of this disease and more changes will occur in the years to come, but St. Mary's is steadfast in its commitment to providing the highest quality care to those entrusted to us. We are proud to serve with distinction.

Profile
In the mid 1960s, St. Luke’s merged with the Peabody Home to become Morningside House and in 1972 Morningside House opened Morningside House Nursing Home. The goal remained the same, to improve the lives of those most in need of assistance, and make every day matter. In 1977 Aging in America was created to serve as the parent company for Morningside House and the other services being provided to the community. Today Aging in America oversees five subsidiaries with the common mission of devoting time, resources and skills to those who need it most in neighborhoods of the Bronx, Manhattan, Westchester, Rockland, and Long Island.
