About CCLC

The Continuing Care Leadership Coalition (CCLC) is a membership and advocacy organization representing more than 100 of the nation's most innovative and comprehensive not-for-profit and public long term care organizations in the New York metropolitan area and beyond. CCLC's establishment in 2003 as an affiliate of the Greater New York Hospital Association (GNYHA) highlights the growing importance of continuing care services in today's health care marketplace.

CCLC's purpose is to shape, through advocacy, research, and education, an environment that supports the delivery of, and access to, continuing care services of the highest quality and to provide State and national leadership in advancing effective continuing care policies and practices through the collective experience, vision, and effort of our members.

The members of CCLC provide mission-driven services across the continuum of care to people of all ages throughout the New York metropolitan area and beyond. CCLC's members are leaders in the delivery of skilled nursing care, home health care, adult day health care, respite care, hospice care, rehabilitation and subacute care, senior housing and assisted living, and services to populations with special needs.

How to use this guide

When consumers and providers of health care seek to access the long term care system, many find it difficult to navigate the options available. The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services confirmed this and found that there is a need for better resources to access the long term care system. In response to this need, we developed the CCLC CareSource as a guide for consumers, providers, and other interested parties, offering ready access to accurate information on the premier long term care organizations in the New York metropolitan area.

The CCLC CareSource contains a detailed table of contents to help users find long term care organizations by type of service and by geographic area. There are three types of provider organizations included in the CareSource, each with its own section in the book—long term care systems, nursing facilities, and home care agencies—and for each organization listed, the CareSource provides a full page of detailed information.

Nursing facilities provide a broad spectrum of services to individuals who are too frail to live in the community, or need additional rehabilitation or recovery following a hospital stay. Typically, a nursing facility provides around-the-clock medical care, skilled nursing services, social services, rehabilitation (e.g., physical, occupational, and speech therapy), therapeutic recreation, nutritional services, and transportation to specialty medical services. In addition to these services, nursing facilities often have libraries, coffee shops, boutiques, auditoriums for programming, outdoor space, beauty salons, and financial services. Many nursing facilities also provide subacute care following a hospital stay with the goals of returning the individual back to the community. Subacute care usually includes intensive rehabilitation therapy and may be right for stroke patients, heart attack patients, orthopedic patients, individuals who have medically complex conditions, persons who require wound care, pain management, chemotherapy, or stabilization of anticoagulant therapy.

Home care is provided in individuals' homes through three types of agencies in New York State—certified home health agencies (CHHAs), long term home health care programs (LTHHCPs), or licensed home care services agencies (LHCSAs). A person might seek home care services for a short period of time to further recover following a hospital stay, or for a longer period of time to receive assistance with medications and other daily activities. CHHAs and LTHHCPs provide the professional care that is required, while LHCSAs provide the paraprofessional and other services that might be needed. New York State's LTHHCP, also known as the Lombardi, or "nursing home without walls," program, allows nursing home certifiable individuals to live in the community. This section of the CareSource includes free-standing home health agencies as well as agencies that are affiliated with long term care organizations or hospitals.

Long term care systems are organizations with multiple entities that provide more than one type of service. A long term care system could include within its purview a nursing facility, a home health care agency, an adult day health care program, a managed long term care program, and senior housing. A long term care system could also include any combination of the above types of entities. Particularly in the not-for-profit and public long term care provider community, long term care organizations now commonly offer a broad range of services to meet the needs of older and disabled individuals both in inpatient settings as well as in the community.

Additional information about the long term care organizations in this guide is available on several Web sites maintained by the State and federal governments. New York State maintains a Nursing Home Profile section on its Web site (<http://nursinghomes.nyhealth.gov/>) and is working to improve access to long term care information through the NY Connects Web site (<http://nyconnects.org/>). The U.S. Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) maintains the Nursing Home Compare and Home Health Compare areas of the Medicare.gov Web site (<http://www.medicare.gov/>). Additional information on choosing long term care services may be found within the consumer area of the CCLC Web site (<http://cclcnyc.org/consumer.htm>).

Although CCLC has verified the information in the CareSource, we recommend that users be sure to contact organizations directly to confirm information as details may change over time. We hope that the CareSource will be a useful tool for you as you navigate the long term care system.

Profile

Kateri Residence is a Joint Commission-accredited, not-for-profit, 520-bed skilled nursing and rehabilitation center in Manhattan. Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of New York assumed responsibility for operating the home in 1981 and named it in memory of Kateri Tekakwitha, a caring 17th century American Indian who converted to Christianity. In 1980, 300 years after her death, Blessed Kateri was beatified by Pope John Paul II. Today, our dedicated clinical and support staff strives to fulfill the ideals of Blessed Kateri by providing loving care to all patients and residents in a manner that bespeaks respect, compassion, sensitivity, and concern. Whether seeking short-term rehabilitation or long term care, our patients and residents benefit from our philosophy of individualized care in a homelike setting.

Profile

The Orzac Center for Extended Care and Rehabilitation opened on January 16, 1989, as a 120-bed long term care facility. We have been providing loving, dignified, skilled care to our residents for over 15 years and we are committed to maintaining a quality of life for them and their families. In 1994, we opened the adult day health care program to provide care to the frail elderly, while maintaining them in their community home. Our philosophy is to maintain the residents at their highest functioning capacity. Every day our residents are encouraged to get all they can from life. They are challenged to do all they can and are given warm, professional assistance with those things they can't do on their own.

Profile

The Dominican Sisters of Hawthorne provide palliative care for persons afflicted with incurable cancer who cannot afford to pay for or needed nursing care. Rosary Hill is a free home; no payment of any kind is accepted from patients or their families, nor from the government. In accordance with their rule, the Sisters place their trust in the loving providence of God. That trust has never failed. Donations large and small, from groups and individuals, have provided the necessary funds to support the work. We dedicate our lives to fulfilling our mission: "We must make our guests glad they crossed the threshold that is to be their last boundary. We must make them as comfortable and happy as if their own people had kept them and put them into the very best bedroom. We must love them."

Sea View Hospital and Rehabilitation Center and Home opened its doors in 1913 as a sanitarium treating individuals suffering from the most feared disease of the time, tuberculosis. It was at Sea View, 39 years later, that physicians developed the drug that would ultimately cure the disease. Sea View continues to serve vulnerable populations. Today, the hospital is well known for its long term care brain injury unit, the first in New York State. Patients undergo intensive rehabilitation with the goals of restoring motor and cognitive functions and maximizing quality of life. Residents and adult day health care clients have access to Sea View's specialty clinics, and Sea View's rehabilitation department offers a variety of physical, occupational, speech, and hearing therapies.

In 1992, when St. Mary's opened its doors to the Harlem community, the face of HIV/AIDS was a grim specter; leaving those infected a mere 18 months to live after diagnosis. During the years since then, advances in medical treatment and chemotherapy have changed a death sentence into life. People are living with and managing this disease as a chronic illness. Much has happened since the early days of this disease and more changes will occur in the years to come, but St. Mary's is steadfast in its commitment to providing the highest quality care to those entrusted to us. We are proud to serve with distinction.

In the mid 1960s, St. Luke's merged with the Peabody Home to become Morningside House and in 1972 Morningside House opened Morningside House Nursing Home. The goal remained the same, to improve the lives of those most in need of assistance, and make every day matter. In 1977 Aging in America was created to serve as the parent company for Morningside House and the other services being provided to the community. Today Aging in America oversees five subsidiaries with the common mission of devoting time, resources and skills to those who need it most in neighborhoods of the Bronx, Manhattan, Westchester, Rockland, and Long Island.
